

End-Times Signs in the Sky? Scientists Confirm Earth Now Has a Second Moon

We may be witnessing one of the greatest celestial phenomena of all time.

Scientists have recently discovered a second moon that orbits in alignment with the Earth's path. In a report by the Daily Mail, it was noted that this confirmed "quasi-moon," which is being dubbed as 2025 PN7, will stay in orbit with the Earth until 2083.

The discovery of this new "moon" was first released by scientists with the Pan-STARRS observatory in Hawaii last month. This quasi-moon is actually an "asteroid that has been orbiting the Sun on a similar trajectory to our planet since the 1960s," as the Mail stated. In another report by GeekSpin, it was noted that this asteroid is only 18 to 36 meters wide, making it about the same size as a small building.

2025 PN7 cannot be seen with the naked eye alone, nor is it tied to Earth's gravity, as it will find its way back out into space someday. This is not the first "quasi-satellite" that experts have uncovered. Back in 1991, "1991 VG" was located nearby, which brought many to believe it was an alien craft.

As the heavens continue to unveil their mysteries, believers are reminded that Jesus Himself foretold there would be “signs in the sun, moon and stars” before His return. In Joel 2:10-11, we see what the end times skies will look like:

Before them the earth quakes, the heavens shake; the sun and moon darken, and the stars withdraw their radiance. The Lord has sounded His voice before His army, for His camp is exceedingly great; mighty is the one who accomplishes His word. For great is the day of the Lord, and very awe-inspiring. Who can endure it?

Those who know Scripture understand that the heavens are declaring more than just scientific phenomena—they’re proclaiming that history is racing toward a climactic conclusion. As we draw closer to the end of the age, we can expect to see more unusual celestial activity as a reminder that Jesus is coming soon.
