

False Christ Has Showdown With 'Devil' in Convenience Store

"Jesus" stabbed the "devil" at a corner gas station because the "devil" was choking him, according to reports.

"[I] walked into what appeared to be a scene of several officers arresting an individual and people cleaning blood off of themselves," witness Andrew Morgado said. "Seems an individual went off and claimed to be Jesus Christ stabbing the victim, claiming he was the devil."

The incident occurred just outside a corner convenience store in Colorado Springs last week.

"He held him like that, he was choking him, and then the other guy took out his knife and went like that and stabbed him. Right here," said another witness, Suzie Cardova, while pointing to her chest.

Thus far, neither individual has been identified.

Several commenters posted their opinions once the article hit social media.

One person wrote: "I'm a Christian and proud of my relationship with God. However THIS guy was craaazy."

Another posted: "Well that's what happens when the city no longer welcomes the name of Jesus to be displayed in public ... Not saying the guy was justified, I'm saying the ground we tread upon is cursed."

Another made a spiritual connection: "Many times demon possessed people will use the name Jesus. Anyone who actually follows the real Jesus and the bible and is Born again filled with the Holy Spirit will not do or say such things.”
