

‘Footprints’ Discovered That Reveal Ancient Israel’s Conquest of Holy Land

Archaeologists believe that six desert “footprints” in the Holy Land represent stopping points for the Jewish people when they entered Israel with Joshua leading the way.

These structures share common features, with the most impressive of them all containing a stone altar that meets the specifications described in the Bible.

Check out the incredible remnants of the children of Israel’s miraculous entry into the promised land!