

Former '60 Minutes' Correspondent Says Open Southern U.S. Border Is 'Satan's Way of Taking Control of the World'

Read Time: 2 Minutes 56 Seconds

Lara Logan, an award-winning former war correspondent who was once part of the longtime CBS program "60 Minutes," blasted the evil agenda of the globalists in keeping the southern U.S. border open, attempting to erase national sovereignty, and destroying the nuclear family unit.

While appearing on Newsmax earlier this month, she went on a rant about the battle of God vs. Satan, good vs evil. She went so far as to state on air that the globalist elites "dine on the blood of children." In response, Newsmax, a supposed "conservative" media outlet, promptly fired her.

Whether Logan was being literal or figurative—for the sake of metaphorical effect—is unclear. But as a highly experienced investigative reporter, Logan is not apt to make bold statements without evidence. It's also unclear if Logan has had a deeper spiritual experience in the Lord, yet she speaks as someone, at least, influenced by the Bible.

"God believes in sovereignty and national identity and the sanctity of the family, and all the things that we've lived with from the beginning of time," Logan told Newsmax host Eric Bolling.

"And He knows that the open border is Satan's way of taking control of the world through all of these people who are his stooges and his servants," she added.

Just as it's unwise to leave the front door of one's house wide open, particularly in New York City, this journalist is pointing out the lack of wisdom to leave the border unguarded and "open" to the illegal migration of people into the United States. News reports of increased child sex trafficking as a direct result of the weak southern U.S. border have been widespread.

Evil does not happen by accident, according to Logan, and calling evil by another name does not justify or purify it. Logan accuses a shadowy group of globalists, connected to the World Economic Forum, of issuing prime directives to globalist-sympathizers around the world.

One of the directives is to destroy Christianity, so that they can elevate themselves as "gods" on the earth, as if we live in a new Babylon. It's a wake-up call to check the next "infrastructure bill" from the Democrats to see if the construction of a "tower" is planned.

"They think that they're going to become gods," Logan told the uncomfortable Newsmax host on air. "That's what they tell us. You've all known [historian Yuval Noah] Harari and all the rest of them at the World Economic Forum."

"You know, the ones who want us eating insects, cockroaches and that, while they dine on the blood of children. Those are the people, right? They're not going to win. They're not going to win."

Logan conveys the sense that the anti-Christian, power-hungry, propaganda-wielding globalists that direct much of the media, education, culture, business and government have become rash and brazen to push their humanistic, trans-evil agenda. It falls in line with the setup to the End Times' culmination.

Although the World Economic Forum-linked globalists dismiss the Bible as a fairytale or piece of ancient cultural folklore unworthy of a modern thinker's serious consideration, the globalists ironically are doing exactly what the Bible predicted, especially in terms of trying to form a one-world government, which starts with open borders that decimate the national sovereignty and identity of each country.

These globalists are eerily acting as if they are becoming modern-day "gods." Logan called them out. Perhaps if she had said they are snacking on the tears of children being sex trafficked rather than "dining on the blood of children," she would have not been fired. But one thing's for sure in Logan's own prediction: they won't win.

The Bible is clear: God wins. And God is using a journalist, who has been awakened to the truth, to try to awaken the world from its Babylonian-style slumber before it is too late.

Anthony Hart is a freelancer writer for Charisma News.

Bring Charisma magazine home with a subscription today!