

Hamas Opens Summer Camps for Next Gen of Terrorists

No one is born a terrorist or a jihadist fighter, it must be learned, and Hamas understands this all too well. Hamas announced on July 14th the opening of its annual summer training camp for children that attracts an average of 100,000 children and teenagers each year.

The month-long terrorist training camps, each of which runs for about a week, are funded and organized by Hamas, the Palestinian Authority and formerly the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA). This year's theme will be the Great March of Return, according to promotional information published by Hamas.
