

HB0 Documentary Shows Adults Leading 4-Year-Old to Stage to Announce New Female Identity

A clip for a new HB0 documentary, Transhood, is causing quite a stir on social media, as it shows a group of adults leading a 4-year-old biological boy to publicly announce he prefers to identity as a little girl.

In the one-minute video, the boy, whose name is Phoenix, is seen dressed in a rainbow skirt as he's ushered to the stage at a seemingly religious ceremony celebrating people who identify with a whole host of sexual descriptors.

Watch these adults push a toddler dressed in rainbow clothing to publicly announce that he is a girl named "Phoenix" who would "prefer she and her pronouns."

"I'm a little shy," the toddler says, when offered the microphone to make the

– Mary Margaret Olohan (@MaryMargOlohan) November 23, 2020

Phoenix is obviously very nervous about making any sort of public declaration. So when handed a microphone, the nervous toddler says, "I'm a little shy."

"You're a little shy?" asked the mother. "Do you want to tell everybody if you're a boy or a girl?" In response, Phoenix said, "I just want to tell them that I'm a girl."

Read the rest of this story from our content partners at Faithwire. {eoa}