

Hobby Lobby Attorneys Ask for Prayer in Buildup to Obamacare Supreme Court Hearing

The Alliance Defending Freedom (ADF) has asked for prayer on behalf of Hobby Lobby and Conestoga Wood Specialties, two of the plaintiffs in the upcoming Supreme Court challenge to the Affordable Care Act—also known as Obamacare.

Set to go before the court March 25, the case will challenge the employer mandate section of the law that would force employers to pay for abortifacient drugs or face crippling fines.

“The outcome will have a dramatic impact on your religious freedom in America,” reads a statement issued by ADF. “With so much at stake, last week Alliance Defending Freedom began our nine weeks of prayer leading up to the court date.

“We invite you to join us each week, lifting up the people and issues related to the trial,” the statement concluded. “Every week we will upload a new prayer guide for you, your family and your church to use as you appeal to God.”
