

How Che Ahn's 'Blueprint for Revival' Can Set America on Fire

I've known Pastor Ché Ahn of Harvest Rock Church in Pasadena, California, for years now. In fact, I interviewed him last August on a critical Charisma Panel about the modern-day persecution of the church in the COVID-19 era. Ahn has been through the fire of persecution in the past year—and come out with a deep passion for another kind of fire.

Jeff Struss, director of content development for Charisma News, wrote an article for Charisma News to share what he gleaned from a recent meeting where Ahn spoke. Struss writes about the three key principles of historic revival Ahn shared as well as the five specific steps he urges pastors and churches to take for activating revival across America today.

Since I haven't yet been able to contact Ahn for a podcast, I decided to interview Struss and have him detail these crucial ideas, which came straight from Ahn himself. Each one is so critical that I wanted to get them out right away.

To hear more about what Ché Ahn said about revival in America—and the specific steps of the blueprint he says will enable the church to push toward awakening—listen to this entire episode of the Strang Report podcast at this link.
