

How Marilyn Hickey's Daughter Uses the Story of Moses to Save Lives

She may be the daughter of one of today's most famous Pentecostal evangelists, but Sarah Bowling is a hero in the faith in her own right through her ministry, Saving Moses.

"Saving Moses kind of goes to the premise of Moses in the Nile River," says Bowling, who is also Marilyn Hickey's daughter. "He's 3 months old, you know, he's gonna be crocodile food. And he gets rescued and goes on to be kind of a significant figure for the nation of Israel."

Bowling uses this story to guide her work.

"From the ages of 0-5, we concentrate on the need that is the most urgent and where the care is the least available," Hickey says. "So the idea is that Moses is about to be eaten by a crocodile, we want to intervene. ... Infant mortality is our sweet spot. We do birth aid, we do something called night care, and so we're aiming for giving babies and toddlers the chance to live when they often do not have it or are about ready to be snuffed out."

Listen to the podcast to hear more about Bowling's ministry efforts and how they are involved in the fight against human trafficking.

Read more from "The Truth About Human Trafficking":

The 'Divine Ruination' That Forced This Man to Fight Against One of Today's Most Prominent Evils

How Holy Spirit Overcame Her Trafficker and Set Her Free

Her Pastor Said God Was in the Darkest Places; Her Experience

Said the Opposite

How This Organization Breaks Centuries' Worth of Generational Curses, Cycles

Anti-Human Trafficking Expert: What to Do When You Face Evil Every Single Day

She Was Abused as a Child; Now She's an Ordained Minister Who Runs a Haven for Prostitutes, Addicts and Trafficking Victims"

Trafficking Survivor Shares What Holy Spirit Told Her While Buyer Negotiated Price for Her Virginity

You can also click here for other episodes.