

How the Holy Spirit Is Obliterating Racial Tension Among Pastors in Charlotte

Don't buy into the media's lies about the chaos erupting in the streets of Charlotte, the Benham brothers say in a recent viral video.

"There is chaos in our streets, but what people don't know is this narrative," Jason Benham says.

More than two years ago, the Holy Spirit began uniting two pastors of different races, Charlotte-area pastor Jay Stewart tells the Benham brothers.

Stewart is about to merge his Refuge church with Derrick Hawkins' church, and Hawkins' church will become the Greensboro campus in November.

"Listen, God is doing an amazing thing with this relationship ... ," Hawkins says. "The Lord's hand is upon this union."

Watch the video to see more.