

Jack Hibbs Issues Warning to Christian Voters

Jack Hibbs recently took to X to give Christians a warning regarding the importance of voting in this year's election.

"I like to think of voting and VOICING," Hibbs writes. "Think about it. You may not get the opportunity to preach to a million people like Billy Graham or pastor a church of 10,000 like Charles Spurgeon – but God has called each of His true children to take advantage of every opportunity (talent) that comes along."

Hibbs points out that we have each been given a voice to stand up for what is right, and in America, the way that we are to use our talents includes voting. This is how we as American citizens have the opportunity to stand up for the values we believe in. And as God's people of faith, this is the way that we are to stand up for the biblical principles our nation is in desperate need of.

This is how we are proven to be obedient and faithful and a good steward over what he has placed before us in every area of life. To be obedient to the opportunity presented is how we show ourselves both faithful to God and at war with wickedness.

"As messy and as dirty as this year's election is, I am grateful that God is using it to separate the wheat from the chaff, the Christian from the almost Christian," Hibbs continues.

Hibbs also draws the connection that many Christians will not use their opportunity to vote.

Sadly, the majority of those who profess to be Christians will not vote at all. They will take the opportunity that God has given them (in this constitutional republic) and they will bury the opportunity in the ground or hide it under a bushel.

Hibbs' message is a timely reminder that we are called to be the light of the world, but part of being that light is standing up for what is right when the opportunity presents itself. We cannot take this liberty of religious freedom for granted. Instead, we must use this unique gift to ensure that the gospel is preached and that religious freedom will continue to reign in America.
