

Jerry B. Jenkins' Son Is About to Bring You a One-of-a-Kind Biblical Experience

It's called The Chosen, and it's one of the highest-grossing crowd-funded projects to date.

So far, the streaming series has raised more than $5 million to tell the story of Jesus in a way you've never seen.

"Films and mini-series about the life of Christ can be good, but they have a major hurdle to overcome. They can't cover the heart and emotion and backstory of all these stories, because they're trying to cover a lot of ground in a short amount of time. Most Jesus movies go from verse to verse, story to story, and we don't have time to really dig in. A multi-season show, like the ones we binge-watch or tune in to weekly, allows you to dive into and connect with the characters," director Dallas Jenkins previously told Charisma News.

In videos from the set, Jenkins, son of famed author Jerry B. Jenkins, shares behind-the-scenes notes about the series.
