

Jonathan Cahn: Prophecy for Washington DC

Is there a prophetic message that the Lord is trying to tell Washington D.C.?

In a special message, leading prophetic voice Rabbi Jonathan Cahn shared what God has been speaking to him for our nation, and how God's people must act in this critical moment. Using his message from the National Gathering of Prayer and Repentance, Cahn explains what the Lord has in store next.

"We are living in prophetic times, critical times," Cahn says.

Playing his message from the gathering, Cahn pleaded with Americans to turn and repent. Drawing from the words of America's first president, George Washington, Cahn reminded the audience of Washington's prophetic warning: "The propitious smiles of heaven can never be expected on a nation that disregards the eternal rules of order and right which heaven itself has ordained."

Cahn not only spoke directly to Washington's message, but he also briefly spoke on Trump's connection to the biblical character of Jehu and what that means for his presidency.

He argued that Trump's victory, his alliance with religious conservatives and his role in overturning Roe v. Wade parallel Jehu's efforts to rid Israel of Baal worship. Trump, according to Cahn, serves as a vessel of God's mercy, offering America a brief window to repent and return to Him.

However, Donald Trump being America's president is not the answer alone. There is One who is much, much greater who is the ultimate answer: Jesus Christ. It is only through Him and revival that comes through knowing Christ that will ultimately change our nation for good.

"The answer is not even the window. The answer is that which the window was given for; the answer is revival. For if we change the government but do not change the people, the unchanged people will change the government back," Cahn says. "If we turn the laws but we don't turn the hearts, then the unturned hearts will turn the laws back again. The only way America can be great again is for America to turn back to the God who made America great in the first place."

With urgency in his voice, Cahn called for a revival that would sweep across every part of America. From the halls of government to the schools, churches and communities, Cahn believes that America's only hope lies in a national spiritual awakening. Cahn's final charge was clear: America must rise to this moment of opportunity, committing to prayer and repentance with fervor, as the window of grace may soon close.

"I'm charging you," Cahn says. "Don't let it stop. Continue. Let's pray every day for revival until it comes."
