So, how do we as Christians combat this darkness?

"There's going to be a prophetic event, a gathering at the National Mall in Washington, D.C., and it's going to happen on the holy day of the Bible, Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement," Cahn says.

"Yom Kippur is the day that God gave for prayer and fasting and intercession and repentance and re-cleansing, redemption," he continues. "For a nation to turn its course, to turn away from sin, to turn away from evil and to turn to God."

Cahn then gives more details on the prophetic importance of this upcoming event to be held on the National Mall.

"It may be the largest Yom Kippur event, gathering, observance in history. And it's going to be exactly that; to pray and intercede for the future of America, for the election, for the world, for revival, for the peace of Jerusalem, the end times, everything. But focused on the future of our nation," says Cahn.

This observance, known as 'A Million Women' event, takes up the call of gathering women like Esther who are willing to intercede on behalf of our nation.

"The focus is on women rising up as Esther, but men are also going to be part as Mordecais. As Esther came to her time, to her place when her nation was in danger of calamity, so too if you're here today, you're alive today, you are at a momentous, critical time in America's history where our nation now is in danger," he continues.

This gathering of 'A Million Women' is championed by Lou Engle and other leaders of the faith who believe in the power of prayer. Jonathan Cahn will be the one to open up the event.

"I'm going to share a prophetic word and we are going to perform together a prophetic act," says Cahn. "We'll also have communion there and much, much, much more."

The event is slated to begin at 9:00 a.m. and end at 7:00 p.m. During this time of prophetic importance, let's pray and seek the Lord's face for what He wants to do in our nation.
