

Kathryn Krick: This Is the Season of Transformation

Could we be on the brink of the biggest season of transformation in history?

In a riveting message at Five-Fold Church, apostle Kathryn Krick spoke about how this season is a time where God is seeking to transform His bride in order to see revival grow. However, there have been many in the body of Christ who have been resistant to seeing this change take place.

"This is prophetically the year of 2025 that God's revival is going to be accepted in a greater scale than ever before," Krick says. "It's the appointed time where Jesus wants his bride to be transformed. it's been transformed just a teensy bit."

Krick's message was clear—revival is not about religious rituals or passive Christianity. It requires an all-in commitment to seeing the Holy Spirit transform lives, heal the sick and deliver people out of bondage.

"There have been so [many in] the body of Christ that have not been on board with this transformation, but have been stuck in their old ways, not wanting to move into this transformation, purification of the bride," Krick says.

Krick points out that this is the divine moment in time for us the church to go out as fishers of men, proclaiming the freedom of the Good News to the lost and oppressed. Just as Scripture reminds us that we cannot put old wine into new wineskins or else they will burst, so too we cannot go into a new season with old mindsets.

With not even two full months behind us in 2025, we have heard many different words about what God will do this year, and it appears that some are predicting this to be a year of new things coming into fruition, a time of transformation for the body of Christ.

Previously speaking on what's ahead, Krick has also declared that 2025 would be a year of acceptance, and Alan DiDio shared with Charisma Media that this would be year where "the time has come for every prophecy to be fulfilled."

Other, newer voices are speaking of this same type of season of transformation, including Mariel Villareal who asked the question, "What if 2025 is your year to see delay broken and promises come into fulfillment?"

In this season of transformation, perhaps it's time to let go of the old, embrace the new and trust that has divine assignments and promises for each of us.
