

Katie Souza and Tomi Arayomi: Prophetic Warning for 2030

Is there something coming in 2030 that we should prepare for?

With 2025 just on the horizon, many people may not be thinking about what's coming in 2030. However, what if God has given us a warning we should heed?

In a recent video with Katie Souza and Tomi Arayomi, the two discussed the prophetic implications of why we need to be thinking ahead to 2030.

Arayomi says that the idea of us needing to build a “Goshen” right now first came to him in 2020 when God told him a very specific message.

“In 2020, the Lord said ‘Tell them you have nine years left,’” Arayomi recounts. “I believe that after 2030 the world is going to change dramatically.”

Arayomi says he believes this will be more than just an agricultural famine, but rather a famine that will affect many facets of life.

“I’m talking about a famine of credit, a famine of banking, a famine of heating, lighting, electricity,” Arayomi says. “And the Lord spoke to me that what is considered money is going to go through another believe we’re shifting into 2030 into another season of ‘what does money look like?’ And around the world that's going to be different for different places."

Arayomi believes the need to build a Goshen, a net of security, isn't just a call for individuals, but for government leaders and nations as well.

"I believe that there are going to be nations that are going to talk about backing their currency by gold and silver as a way of transferring wealth back to their nations."

Arayomi also says that in the future we may see governments partnering with prophets, and more people of the prophetic nature moving into strategic leadership positions. He believes that who we partner with in the next seven years will be critical for the kind of life we have when the famine comes. Just as Ruth chose to cling to Naomi and was blessed even after devastation in her life, the people we choose to align with now will make all the difference in the world.

"We've got to now pray into 'Who is our Ruth? Who is our Naomi?' The Ruths need the wisdom and the authority and the influence of the Naomis, and the Naomis need the youth and exuberance and vigor and vitality and fire of the Ruths," Souza says.

As we pray, prepare and seek God for how He wants to align our lives for what's coming ahead, let us take comfort in knowing that He hears our requests and will never leave nor forsake those who truly love Him.
