

Max Lucado Celebrates 'Golden Anniversary of God's Great Grace' With First Tattoo

Pastor Max Lucado, a beloved Christian author and preacher, revealed on Good Friday he received his first tattoo to commemorate the 50-year anniversary of his conversion to faith.

"I'm celebrating the golden anniversary of God's great grace in my life," he wrote in an Instagram post featuring a picture getting the word "tetelestai," which is Greek for "it is finished," tattooed onto his forearm. "[Fifty] years ago this spring, grace found me. My testimony is interwoven with my favorite word in the Bible."

The word "tetelestai" is a reference to John 19:30, when, on the cross, Jesus declared, "It is finished," before taking His last breath.
