

Mexicans Protest Religion Promotion in Public Schools

(Reuters/Daniel Becerril)

A man takes part in a protest with a sign wrapped around his head to shield himself from the sun in Monterrey, Mexico, Wednesday. People took to the streets to protest a reform that would change the country's secular state and allow the promotion of religion in public schools, according to local media.