Bible Prophecy Fulfilled: Red Heifer Born in Israel Marks a Prophetic Milestone

In a momentous development that has reverberated throughout Christian and Jewish communities, a red heifer, a significant symbol in Bible prophecy, has been born in Israel.

The Temple Institute, an organization dedicated to preparations for the Third Temple in Jerusalem, made the groundbreaking announcement on their YouTube channel, heralding the calf's arrival as a pivotal moment in the fulfillment of ancient Bible prophecies.

The birth of this red heifer, a female calf, holds profound spiritual implications, as it is believed to bring the promise of reinstating biblical purity to the world. In both Christianity and Judaism, the red heifer has played a prominent role in eschatological narratives, specifically in relation to the "end of times."

Students Spark Holy Spirit Explosion at Small, Liberal Texas University

A revival at Asbury University in Kentucky gained a great deal of nationwide attention for 16 days back in February. It spawned many other mini revivals across the country, but eventually the excitement waned.

In sharp contrast, a little-known liberal university in southeast Texas has been celebrating a campus revival since 2018, and its momentum for Jesus continues to this day with weekly salvations, baptisms, healings and repentance among its students.

Texas A&M-Corpus Christi, a school of a little less than 11,000 students, is seeing an unprecedented move of God at the collegiate level. It has become a model university for the gospel of Jesus Christ, says Mike Fehlauer, the lead pastor of nearby New Life Church, where it all began five years ago.

Elementary School Hires Drag Queen Previously Charged for Sexual Offenses

An elementary school in Oklahoma is under fire for their decision to hire none other than a drag queen with a previous record for possessing child pornography.

Dr. Shane Murnan was hired at the John Glenn Elementary School in Oklahoma City back in June by Western Heights Public Schools. While Murnan has been in the education field for over 20 years, he was charged back in 2002 for possession of child pornography on his computer. His case was later reversed from what the court ruled was a lack of evidence.

According to The Christian Post, the school district originally shared their excitement for Murnan's hiring on Facebook in June. {eo}
