Here's a quick summary of the top stories on :

In recent years, Rolling Stone magazine has taken a sharp turn into anti-Christian, anti-biblical and anti-God territory, and its current piece attacking Rabbi Jonathan Cahn serves as a stark reminder of this concerning trend.

The article not only misrepresents Cahn's message, but also reveals a broader issue of bias and prejudice against those who hold a biblical worldview. It is crucial to shed light on the anti-Semitic undertones within the article. Cahn answered Rolling Stone's article demonstrating each off-base point.

The Israel Hamas End Time Mystery

The supposed controversy surrounding Rabbi Cahn's recent video, "The Israel-Hamas End-Time Mystery," centers on a brief segment where he expresses compassion and sympathy for Israel and the Jewish people in light of their ongoing struggles. In his message, he highlights the significance of Jesus (Yeshua) as the Prince of Peace, emphasizing that true peace can be found in Him. Rolling Stone decided to use this call to salvation to claim Cahn blamed Jews for the Hamas terror attack, all because they have not accepted Jesus as the Messiah.

Amid the recent upheaval triggered by events like Hamas' attack on Israel, Khoury's life in Bethlehem is far from ordinary. Are Half of This Influencer's Followers Really Christians?

In one of his latest videos, Christian influencer Apostle Alexander Pagani questions whether or not half of the people following his online ministry are actually born-again Christians because of the commonality in today's society to mix half-hearted devotion to God with worldly customs that does not produce biblical fruit.

"I can say this boldly," Pagani says. "Sometimes I wonder if half the people that follow our ministries online if you guys are born again truly, or are you just following the newest Christian fad of Christianity. I'm here to tell you that if your faith is not anchored in Christ alone, by faith alone, in the Word of God alone and you didn't repent of your sins—not just believe in the cross, did you repent of your sin and believe that Jesus died on the cross, was buried three days later and resurrected from the dead?"

Pagani says the problem with today's Christianity is that the message of repentance of sins isn't being preached. Instead, he warns that only a feel-good message has become the main focus of many platforms. {eoa}
