

National Survey: Over 70% of Voters Say Lessons of Easter and Passover Important to Keeping America's Future Strong

Convention of States Action, in partnership with The Trafalgar Group – one of America's most accurate pollsters in 2016, 2018, 2020 and 2021 – is releasing the results of a new national survey. Results were from surveys conducted April 5-8 of over 1,000 likely 2022 election voters.

"Every day, we're told that Americans place less and less value on faith, and yet when asked about the two most significant holidays in the Judeo and Christian traditions, over 70% of voters say the moral lessons they teach us are vital to a free and strong America in the future," says Mark Meckler, President of Convention of States Action. "Parents want our children to be taught to know and respect God, value freedom, observe the golden rule, and to achieve a good and great society through hard work and sacrifice.

"These are some of the fundamental values taught to us through our Judeo-Christian heritage. This is the foundation of all that is exceptional about the United States of America. Don't believe the headlines; we are still one nation under God."

For complete details on the poll, including graphics, please visit .

KEY INSIGHT: Large Majority of Americans Believe the Moral Lessons Found in the Holidays of Easter and Passover Are Important to Ensuring a Strong American Future

- 72.6 percent believe the moral lessons found in the holidays of Easter and Passover are important to ensuring a strong America for future generations:
 - 52.6 percent say very important
 - 20 percent say somewhat important
- 27.4 percent believe the moral lessons found in the holidays of Easter and Passover are not important to ensuring a strong America for future generations:
 - 16.4 percent say not important at all
 - 11 percent say not very important

KEY INSIGHT: Bi-Partisan Support That Moral Lessons Found in the Holidays of Easter and Passover Are Important to Ensuring a Strong American Future

- 56.9 percent of Democrats believe the moral lessons found in the holidays of Easter and Passover are important to ensuring a strong America for future generations.
- 75.5 percent of Independents believe the moral lessons found in the holidays of Easter and Passover are important to ensuring a strong America for future generations.
- 85.6 percent of Republicans believe the moral lessons found in the holidays of Easter and Passover are important to ensuring a strong America for future generations. {eo}

Boasting a grassroots network of over 5 million supporters and volunteers, Convention of States' mission is to restore a culture of self-governance in America and to curtail federal overreach. Its primary focus in accomplishing this mission is using a limited Article V Convention to propose constitutional amendments that impose limitations on the size and scope of the federal government, including a balanced budget requirement and term limits for federal officials.

Read articles like this one and other Spirit-led content in our new platform, CHARISMA PLUS.