

Obama Plans to Do Something Controversial With the US Currency

Earlier this year, President Barack Obama announced plans to put a woman on the bill, and it's causing some controversy.

A nonprofit called Women on the 20s says the $10 bill is not enough. It wants a woman on the $20 bill instead.

The group's online campaign has more than half a million signatures.

Treasury Secretary Jack Lew is open to suggestions about who should be on the currency, but he's sticking to the $10.

The debate has put a group called MRC-TV on a quest to see how many Americans actually know whose image is on American money.
