

Olympic Athletes from Around the World Unite to Praise Jesus in 'Special' Moment

Woke secularists regularly foment identity-based hatred and strife, only to turn around and re-brand those evils as love and inclusion.

Thus, one rejoices at the sight of Christian athletes from different countries showing the world what love and inclusion really means, especially when the scene occurs at the otherwise woke and blasphemous Paris Olympics.

Earlier this week on the social media platform Instagram, American-born British Olympic hurdler Cindy Sember posted a clip of eleven beautiful Christian female athletes gathered around a piano and singing praise to Jesus in a moment that Sember called "truly something special."

Sember herself recorded the video.
