

Paralyzed Missionary Steve Saint Discusses Next Chapter in Life

A year after missionary Steve Saint was partially paralyzed during a test flight of his newly invented flying car, the son of “End of the Spear” martyr Nate Saint is unveiling the next chapter in his life.

He says his days now start with morning spasms, and mundane chores like sitting up and pocketing keys require intense concentration.

But for the last decade Steve’s ministry theme has been “Let God Write Your Story.”

Despite his physical challenges, the resilient missionary says he continues to stand by that sage counsel and hopes to be an example of its truth.
