

Pastor Gunned Down After Leading Prayer at Rally for Ted Cruz

A man gunned down a pastor one day after the pastor led the invocation prayer at a rally for presidential candidate Ted Cruz.

Police are searching for Kyle Odom, who they believe critically wounded Pastor Tim Remington in the parking lot of his Idaho church after the service on Sunday.

Altar Church Outreach Pastor John Padula told KVLY Remington suffered a shattered pelvis, a skull fracture, a broken arm and a punctured lung.

Family friend Roger Crigger says Remington's survival and recovery are evidence of God's hand on the pastor's life.

"Just talked to Cindy Remington at the hospital and, as it stands, as far as I understand it, Tim Remington will simply have more reason to boast in the Lord!!! Shot six times and not ONE vital hit. One of the bullets TRIED to enter the brain but stopped at the skull, one of the bullets busted his hip, one fractured his shoulder pretty bad, but he is and will continue to be ALIVE AND SERVING GOD! Just like we all KNEW he would!" Crigger posted to Facebook.

"Emergency room Tech's and Dr.s are calling this a miracle, I'm saying, by today's worldly standards it IS a miracle, but by Gods standards, it's another chance to show and appreciate the powerful hand of God!

"HIS NAME IS TIM REMINGTON AND HE LIVES, IN JESUS NAME! Nothing shall by any means harm him, and greater is He who is IN Him than he who is in the world and more are those who are with us than those against us!!!!” Crigger posted.
