

Pat Robertson Prophecies End Times Asteroid Will Hit Earth

NASA experts have warned that Earth has seen more asteroids hit its surface than once thought. In a just-released report, the agency recorded 26 hits that caused atomic bomb-scale explosions since 2001.

Now, Pat Robertson is once-again warning that an apocalyptic asteroid could strike the earth soon and usher in the end times. Robertson predicted it in his 1995 novel.

"I wrote a book. It's called The End of the Age and it deals with an asteroid hitting the earth," Robertson said on his broadcast, The 700 Club. "I don't see anything else that fulfills the prophetic words of Jesus Christ other than an asteroid strike. There isn't anything that will cause the seas to roil, that will cause the skies to darken, the moon and the sun not to give their light, the nations terrified on earth saying 'what's happening?'"

Robertson then warned his readers to get ready and get right with the Lord.

"It could be next week, or it could be a 1,000 years from now," he said, "but nevertheless we want to be ready at whatever time the Lord says 'I'm wrapping it up, it's time to come home.'"
