

Perry Stone's Stunning Vision of Iran, Israel and Impending Chaos

Could a prophetic warning give us a glimpse into coming danger on its way?

In a recent video, Perry Stone shared a sobering vision and an urgent warning regarding Iran, its nuclear ambitions and the global repercussions of a potential conflict.

"This is a very update," Stone begins, recalling a vision he had years ago that now seems increasingly relevant. "I saw two huge trees... both bleached white," he said, suggesting they could symbolize the death of two world leaders. He also saw "nuclear cooling towers... off a coastal area," which began "spinning and turning into tornadoes." This indicated, in his interpretation, some form of disruption or attack on nuclear infrastructure.

In another vision, Stone saw "large tanks that you would store fuel in... and a weapon released... like blue kind of light or almost lightning... cut off the power." He later discovered this resembled "a small EMP... that cuts off the electricity."

Stone emphasized the significance of Iran's geopolitical stance. "Iran supports a lot of terrorism... Hamas received most of their weapons through [them]," he stated. While acknowledging the kindness of many people there, he pointed out that “the good people want freedom from the 20% of these extreme Islamic radicals that control the country.”

This prophetic unction also connects with recent developments: “There have been seven major explosions in Iran,” Stone said, adding that these are likely acts of sabotage from inside the country—possibly connected to Israeli intelligence. “Israel... does not have to use fighter jets necessarily to attack,” he explained. “They can use missiles from a distance or... certain types of things that you see happening.”

Stone believes these escalating events may be setting the stage for a larger prophetic fulfillment. “If you see an attack come involving anything I’ve spoken of, it is a major sign of the big things that are getting ready to happen.”
