

‘Praise Darwin’ Professor Cries, Going Nuts Against Campus Preacher

A University of Connecticut professor went wild on Tuesday during a campus presentation on the gospel that included discussion on evolution.

James Boster, a professor of anthropology, spent more than two hours trying to draw students away from evangelists.

“He asked me if I had accepted Darwin as my lord and savior,” evangelist Don Karns told Christian News Network. “He was very agitated, very demonstrative. ... It was very unbecoming of a professor.”

Watch the professor’s rant below.