

PRAY: Search Underway for Missing Alaska Plane

Right now a search is underway for a small plane carrying 10 people that disappeared yesterday, Feb. 6, between Unalakleet, Alaska, and Nome.

According to CNN, the plane was last tracked over the Norton Sound at about 3:16 p.m., only 12 miles offshore.

As of right now, local and federal officials are working to locate the missing craft.

“We are currently doing an active ground search from Nome and White Mountain and have as much up-to-date information on the event as possible,” the Nome Volunteer Fire Department said on Facebook. “Due to weather and visibility, we are limited on air search at the current time. National Guard and Coast Guard and Troopers have been notified and are active in the search.”
