"Christianity is facing an existential threat in Nigeria," the president said. "Thousands and thousands of Christians are being killed. Radical Islamists are responsible for this mass slaughter. I'm hereby making Nigeria a Country of Particular Concern. If Christians or any such group is slaughtered, nothing is happening in has to be done."

"Christianity is facing an existential threat in Nigeria. The United States cannot stand by while such atrocities are happening there, and in numerous other Countries. We stand ready, willing, and able to save our Great Christian Population around the World!" – President Trump

He then asked for Rep. Riley Moore (R-WV) to look into the matter and report back to him immediately.

“The United States cannot stand by while such atrocities are happening in Nigeria and numerous other countries,” he said. “It’s not only Nigeria. It’s all over. We stand ready, willing and able to save our great Christian population around the world.”

The president then said, “This is not going to happen. The killing of Christians is not going to happen.”

Trump has repeatedly made it clear that the ongoing genocide of Christians in Nigeria must come to an end.

In an interview with Fox News, Clint Lyons, the co-founder of iReach Global, said that since Trump’s insistence for Nigeria to end these heinous murders that their government was “starting to snap in line... against some of these terrorist forces.”
