

Pro-Abortion Radicals Offer 'Bounties' on Supreme Court Justice 'Sightings'

Abortion rights supporters marched outside the White House Saturday, demanding more action from the president.

The increased pressure comes even though Biden already issued an executive order Friday that tries to safeguard access to the abortion pill, protect women who travel to other states for abortions, and launch so-called public education efforts.

Abortion supporters say that's not enough, and they now want Biden to declare a public health emergency. Biden was asked about it Sunday. "That's something I've asked the folks, the medical people in the administration to look at whether that, whether I have the authority to do that and what impact that would have," Biden said.

The administration admits its powers are limited. Kamala Harris told CBS' Face the Nation on Sunday that Congress must step in and enact an abortion law. "Because that branch of government where we actually codify, which means put into law, the rights that again we took for granted but have now clearly been taken from the women of America," Harris said.

Jeanne Mancini, president of the March for Life, told CBN News that Biden's executive order will make the Department of Health and Human Services a "marketing agency" for abortion and expand access to the dangerous abortion pill.

Mancini said, "My biggest concern is the promise to expand chemical abortion and how can they do that at the federal level? Well, the FDA has oversight on that since it's a prescription that people can get at the doctor. Studies have shown that women end up in the emergency room more often when they take chemical abortion and have four times as many complications.”

Meanwhile, Morton’s steakhouse chain ripped protesters who targeted Supreme Court Justice Brett Kavanaugh while he dined in its Washington, D.C., restaurant last week, calling it “an act of selfishness and void of decency.”

Now a group called ShutDownDC says it’s willing to pay a bounty to its social media followers for a “confirmed sighting” of conservative Supreme Court justices.

DC Service Industry Workers... If you see Kavanaugh, Alito, Thomas, Gorsuch, Coney Barrett or Roberts DM us with the details!

We’ll venmo you $50 for a confirmed sighting and $200 if they’re still there 30 mins after your message.
