Could a prophetic word given to Donald Trump by Jonathan Cahn be playing out right now in front of our eyes?

President Trump, you were born into the world to be a trumpet of God, a vessel of the Lord in the hands of God. God called you to walk according to the template; He called you according to the template of Jehu, the warrior king.

It will be the last act and maybe America's last chance of redemption. But for that to happen, you must seek Him with all your heart. Follow Him with all your might. Jehu was born to make his nation great again by turning it back to God. So were you.

Doesn't all of this sound familiar?

Trump really has gone through all kinds of turbulence to get where he is today. However, one of the key principles is that America could only thrive if Trump would completely turn his heart over to God.

God is the One who lifted you up, and He wills that you be filled with a breath of His Spirit. God is calling you to go all out for God, for Him, and if you, then what follows will be the greatest and most glorious part. Then you will do what no president has ever done.

Interesting. In last night's address to Congress, Trump specifically mentioned that he had accomplished "...more in 43 days than most administrations accomplished in four years."

Could Cahn's prophecy already be at work? Will Trump accomplish things in a way no president ever has?

As Trump continues to usher in a golden age, he also has upheld his promises to the faith community and continues to outwardly speak about God. From creating a Faith Office to giving God the credit for saving his life, Trump appears to be taking to Christianity.

During his address to Congress, he gave a message to the children of the nation that they are "perfect exactly the way God made you."

As Trump continues to shift the nation's policies and images back toward faith, we just may see Jonathan Cahn's prophecy fulfilled during these next four years.
