

Purim, Passover and a Blood Moon: Amanda Grace Predicts Powerful Shifts Ahead

Could Purim have an even deeper meaning to it than we see on the surface?

In a compelling broadcast, Amanda Grace released a powerful prophetic word with believers, drawing attention to the divine significance of Purim and its connection to a blood moon and a time of revelation and restoration between Purim and Passover.

Grace emphasized that this season—marked by the blood moon—represents a unique prophetic window in which God is positioning His people for major shifts. The blood moon, coinciding with Purim, serves as a powerful symbol of divine timing and the unveiling of hidden things. Grace explained that the appearance of the blood moon is no accident; it signals that God is about to bring to light long-buried secrets, bringing judgment on corruption while also offering a pathway to restoration.

Just like the story of Esther, Grace believes we are entering a time when hidden agendas, corruption and manipulation will be revealed on a global scale. There is an unmistakable sense that God's hand is moving in a mighty way, bringing about exposure of what has been concealed for far too long.

"A plot is about to be unearthed. Esther, too, says the shall be exposed," Grace declares.

One of the key prophetic insights Grace shared was regarding Iran and its longstanding influence over the region. She believes that, just as the Iron Curtain fell over Eastern Europe decades ago, the “iron curtain” of Iran will fall during this significant season. For Grace, this is not just about political change, but a divine intervention that will open the door for freedom and God’s will to be fulfilled in the Middle East.

As we move from Purim to Passover, Grace emphasized that this period holds profound prophetic significance. Purim, a time of divine reversal and rescue, marks the beginning of this revelatory season, but Passover—a time when God’s deliverance is remembered—ushers in a wave of transformation. The time between these two Jewish observances is a moment of preparation, a time to press in for deeper understanding and to align with God’s divine plan.

“This is a time of reverence,” says Grace. “The Lord is expecting us to be reverent and to humble ourselves.”

Just as Esther’s obedience brought about the salvation of the Jews and Moses’ faith led to the liberation of the Israelites, Grace believes this season will bring a series of prophetic breakthroughs and an outpouring of God’s justice and mercy.

In this pivotal time, believers are called to rise with boldness, trusting that God is not only revealing hidden things but also setting the stage for His glory to be made known in powerful and unexpected ways.
