

Spirit-Led Money Manager: Market Shows Signs of Accumulation

The Issachar Fund (LIONX, BRI, ESG) is 30% invested in 26 leading growth stocks on Sunday, Oct. 4, 2020.

I attempt to judge the market's health by the price and volume action of the current leading stocks, and I am encouraged with what I am seeing. Leading stocks appear to be acting well, and many continue to exhibit signs of accumulation by large institutions as their prices rise on above-average volume. The indexes held lines of support even after President Trump was diagnosed with COVID-19 on Friday. I am pleased to see leading stocks advance in the face of this potentially bad news. By the grace of God, I expect the president to recover in record time miraculously. If he does, I expect the market could resume its uptrend, and I possibly plan to get more invested in leading stocks. If I am wrong, I will try to do what is necessary to manage risk, seeking to avoid life-changing losses.

Now for some third-quarter performance numbers. (There is no guarantee that any investment will achieve its objectives, generate positive returns or avoid losses.)

Bottom Line: For the week ending Oct. 4, 2020, risk appeared to be declining as many leading stocks seemed to be under accumulation with prices rising on above-average volume. If leading stocks showed signs of distribution as in February, I would be more concerned and expect the market to decline further. However, I believe the Fed is still on our side, and it will keep rates low and liquidity high for the foreseeable future. I pray and expect President Trump to fully recover and come out swinging to make America great again. Thanks for your time and may God bless you and America!
