

Students Around the World to Pray Together for ‘See You At The Pole’ Tomorrow

This year’s “See You At The Pole” prayer rally is set for Wednesday, Sept. 25. It’s an event organized and led by students around the world.

According to the SYATP organization’s website, it’s just about one thing—prayer.

Public school students are urged to pray at 7 a.m. Wednesday around their school’s flagpole.

The theme for the event is a Bible verse found in the Old Testament: 2 Chronicles 7:14.

“If my people, who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and will heal their land.”

The event is a part of the Global Week of Student Prayer held from Sept. 22 to Sept. 28.

Other private or home-school students will pray in unique ways, places and times all during the week.
