

Trump's Board of Peace Debuts Its Social Media Presence, Sending Shockwaves

President Donald Trump's Board of Peace is continuing to grow, this time by jumping onto social media.

The international organization is officially on X, with followers to date. Their first act on the platform was to report a video from the White House account of Ali Shaath, the Chief Commissioner of the National Committee for the Administration of Gaza. In it, he gave praise to Trump for the reopening of Rafah's crossing.

"I want to start by thanking President Donald J. Trump and his administration for their intensive efforts to advance peace in the whole region," Shaath said.

To order Troy Anderson's new book, Designated Disrupter, visit .

Following that, the Board of Peace reposted Nickolay E. Mladenov's post, which captured the Board of Peace's plan for Gaza's rebuilding. Since then, the organization has been sharing posts welcoming new nations to the Trump initiative. The most recent post welcomed Vietnam as one of the group's founding members.

PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST: Ali Shaath, Chief Commissioner of the National Committee for the Administration of Gaza, thanks President Trump for his leadership, announces the reopening of the Rafah crossing, and outlines a path toward a more prosperous future for Gaza.

– The White House (@WhiteHouse) January 22, 2026

As questions continue to rattle the world about how the Board of Peace could affect other international organizations like the United Nations, it appears that Trump's new venture is only just beginning.

You can view the Board of Peace's new X page by clicking here.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.