

Was the Yellowstone Explosion Part of a Prophetic Warning?

Is it possible that the Yellowstone hydrothermal explosion was part of a prophetic warning?

Yesterday's hydrothermal explosion at Biscuit Basin in Yellowstone National Park was a shock to the entire world.

The National Park Service shared on their site that the explosion happened around 10:19 a.m. north of Old Faithful in Biscuit Basin near the Sapphire Pool. Due to the explosion, Biscuit Basin will stay closed for the rest of the summer.

On X, the Yellowstone National Park wrote, "(Heads up!) Biscuit Basin in Yellowstone National Park temporarily closed due to hydrothermal explosion."

This geological phenomenon has caught the eyes of people all over America. However, what if this occurrence was foretold a decade before it happened?

A Kim Clement prophecy from June 14, 2014 was shared on Facebook which described this very event.

"There is a national park where there is an eruption under the earth. For it to come out and many say, 'it is just simply an eruption.' But it is not. It is a sign that I shall contain that which would try and be destructive in this nation. A volcano as a sign. And then there will be another earthquake, says the Lord," Clement's prophecy reads.

The prophecy also discusses a great “E” that will come into play and a call for God’s people to strike the rock.

“I will release that which has been held back from you and cause triumph to be sounded in your mouths,” the prophecy concludes.

This interesting prophecy comes at a time when we have started to see the fulfillment of Clement’s other prophecy of a ‘Strange July’ come to pass. This incident shows that a ‘Strange July’ may not just mean in the political realm as we saw with the attempted assassination of Donald Trump and Joe Biden’s step away from a re-election bid. Instead, this ‘Strange July’ may just encompass multiple areas of life.

One of the terrifying events we just saw included the global CrowdStrike outage affecting technology, people have been impacted around the world. Major entities like Delta Airlines are still dealing with the repercussions of this outage.

As we head into the last week of this month, we can only imagine what other bizarre things we may see in this truly ‘Strange July.’
