

WATCH: Pastor Prays Over Elon Musk During Town Hall, What He Said Left the Room Stunned

In a world that often feels upside down, it's rare to see a moment of stillness and reverence in the midst of the chaos—especially in the public square. But that's exactly what happened at a recent town hall in Wisconsin hosted by Elon Musk. What started as a political and cultural conversation turned into something profoundly spiritual.

A man stood up during the event and shared his admiration for Musk, thanking him for standing firm under immense pressure. Then, with humility, he asked if his father—a pastor—could pray over Elon.

Musk agreed.

And then came a moment that caught the crowd off guard in the best possible way. The pastor, with calm sincerity, offered a prayer not just for Musk, but for the entire nation:

“Gracious heavenly Father, we are thankful for our country. We are thankful that God does bless America and that God is the source of all goodness, love and provision, and that You, Lord God, have provided a great nation with great history.

And although we've gone through many rough times, You're still very present and active with us.

Thank You for protecting President Trump from that fatal attack, and we ask that You envelop and protect all of those who are fighting for justice, for freedom, for order, for dignity and to reward people according to merit.

And especially put your hedge of protection around Elon Musk, around his children, around his whole entire family and all of his team members—that all would do good and just by our country, and freedom truth and justice would reign once again.

We ask this in the name of the blessed Savior Jesus Christ, who we remember during this time of year—who suffered and died for our sins.

May You wash away all that is wrong with our country and start with us.

We ask this in Jesus' name, amen."

The crowd responded with heartfelt applause, clearly moved. And Elon, visibly touched, simply said:

"Well, that was beautiful. It's, uh—I think we're going to need divine protection, frankly."

In a nation so often divided by politics, power and ideology, this moment is a powerful reminder: we're not just in a political battle—we're in a spiritual one. And whether or not Elon Musk sees himself as a man of faith, he was willing to receive prayer from someone who is.

That alone speaks volumes.

Now more than ever, we need to be lifting up our leaders in prayer—whether we agree with them or not. We're called to do so (1 Tim. 2:1–2). We're reminded that the real fight is not against flesh and blood, but against the spiritual forces at work behind the scenes (Eph. 6:12).

So let's take a cue from that humble Wisconsin pastor and pray for Elon Musk, for President Trump and for all those in leadership of our country.
