Have you ever heard something completely supernatural that showcases the goodness of God?

In the Philippines, a group from the Deep Believer prayer team leading a prison ministry had quite the surprise when their recorded time of worship was invaded by musical sounds from heaven.

Jennifer Bagnaschi of the “Deep Believer” YouTube channel discussed this supernatural phenomenon that was heard during a Zoom call where she and others heard this glorious wonder.

Bagnaschi says she does not normally jump onto the prayer Zoom calls, but in this case she decided to do so. When she got on the call, the prayer team wanted to play a recording for her of what they have been doing with the prison ministry there.

“You put on the recording that was in worship to the prisoners,” Bagnaschi says. “As you guys were singing, something miraculous happened.”

During the Zoom call, Bagnaschi and the other call participants noticed another source of music coming through their speakers. The members of the prayer team then paused the video, unsure of where the sound was coming from as everyone on the call was muted. Even with the video paused, the heavenly instruments could still be heard on the Zoom call, even growing louder. What's interesting is how the heavenly music did not play during the live worship session, only on Zoom.

The sound was much like a trumpet, the peace and presence illuminating through each person's speakers. Messages came afterward of people who were brought to tears, filled with joy from hearing this divine music.

Bagnaschi says she went to a professional music establishment to have them listen to the audio from the Zoom call. The specialist affirmed that the noise was not coming from an amplifier, the source of it being unidentifiable.

"He said, 'This definitely may be something divine,'" Bagnaschi recalls. "Because he said, 'I really don't know what this is. I can't make out what this is.'"

This fantastic encounter is a reminder that the Holy Spirit is constantly pouring out heaven onto our earth to declare the glory of the Lord and to give us glimpses of what our forever home will look like.
