

WATCH: There's a Caliphate Coming and Obama Doesn't Seem to Care

The White House is holding a three-day confab on violent extremism—but they will not allow anyone to mention Islamic extremism.

If you can't say it—how can you fight it?

The president's taxpayer-funded gab fest includes workshops like "Promoting Positive Narratives Online." How about a workshop on the most efficient way to dispatch a jihadi to the Lake of Fire?

President Obama addressed extremism in an op-ed for the Los Angeles Times on Wednesday. For the first time he acknowledged that the Egyptian men martyred for their faith—were Christians. But he also tried to portray Muslim Americans as victims.

Here's a snippet of what he wrote: "We know that many Muslim Americans across our country are worried and afraid."

Well, I know many Christians and Jews are worried and afraid too. Worried about losing their heads. Afraid of getting burned alive—by Islamic extremists.

Attorney General Eric Holder seems to think the bigger problem is me—and my colleagues at Fox News.

You know—the world would be a much safer place if the Obama administration hated Islamic extremists as much as they do Fox News.

Todd Starnes is host of Fox News & Commentary, heard on hundreds of radio stations. Sign up for his American Dispatch newsletter, be sure to join his Facebook page, and follow him on Twitter. His latest book is God Less America. This article originally appeared on