

WATCH: What's Really Happening in Charleston After the AME Massacre

Tradition is on the line in South Carolina, as Gov. Nikki Haley calls for the removal of the Confederate flag.

After Dylann Roof, who has confessed to killing nine at the Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church, shot his victims, something remarkable is happening.

And it's not just happening in that church.

Thousands, some indicate up to 10,000, gathered at the Arthur Ravenel Jr. Bridge to not protest, but show their solidarity with the victims and against racism.

Take a look.
