

WATCH: Why World War III Might Be Closer Than We Think

With the United States considering deploying vessels to the South China Sea, TruNews' Rick Wiles sees something much more dangerous in our future beyond Chinese intel: World War III.

The South China sea is host of many disputed territorial claims, and if the U.S. takes any action toward this, China will see it as “provocative,” according to CNN.

Is such a move the modern-day equivalent of Franz Ferdinand's assassination?
