

‘We Have No King but King Jesus’: 101 Ohio Pastors Push Back

Joe Biden’s executive orders mandating shots are not popular with the American public. With resistance to the experimental COVID-19 vaccination going viral across the country, a group of Ohio clergy are taking a jab at the White House’s mandate.

Leading clergy representing over 100 congregations across the Buckeye Bible Belt are giving their disapproval of the national vaccine mandate and have written the president in an open letter.

“Joe Biden can take his medical advice somewhere else; we are not going to listen to him,” says Pastor J.C. Church, one of the 101 clergy co-signers. “This president and his godless administration have foot-in-mouth disease for every issue they touch. Since he does not have the scientific data nor the trust of the people, he uses fear to try to get compliance. Authoritarians in Marxist governments use this method.”

Church points out that as health care workers and military servicemen are losing their jobs for not taking the shot, illegal immigrants with no health screening are pouring across the U.S. border and are exempt from the Biden vaccine mandate. “Because of this derelict policy, it is not surprising there has been a threefold increase in COVID cases this year with the vaccine compared to last year when there was no vaccine. Judging by his incompetent policies, this president hates our country and has no interest in ending this pandemic.”

“To combat a virus with an overall % survival rate, the federal government should not impose its will on persons by mandating COVID-19 experimental vaccines and removing other alternative treatments,” the clergy said in their open letter.

"The people should have the ability to make their own health decisions."

According to another clergy co-signer, forcing people to take the unproven COVID-19 experimental vaccine is immoral.

"Testing an experimental vaccine normally takes 10 years to properly evaluate its performance," says Pastor Jerry O'Brien. "It is immoral for persons to be forced within a matter of months to take an unproven COVID-19 experimental vaccination associated with nearly 15,000 deaths, 1.5 million reports of adverse events and at least 100,000 breakthrough COVID infections in vaccinated persons. While the Bible calls every human being precious, the Biden administration is treating its citizens like human guinea pigs."

Ironically, the same day President Biden gave his mandate saying "this is not about freedom or personal choice," Vice President Kamala Harris criticized a new Texas law banning abortion. She told abortion providers gathered at the White House that government should "not interfere with personal health decisions."

In response, the clergy commented, "Mr. President, your administration believes the unalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness do not come from our Creator God but rather from a federal government which does not know its right hand from its left. Your administration's politicization of the truth is profound."

Truth be told, the clergy believe that studies from the Cleveland Clinic and Israel indicate natural immunity found in the human body can be more effective than the COVID-19 vaccinations.

"God-given natural immunity found in the human body is stronger than experimental shots that have not been properly clinically tested," says Pastor John Bouquet. "If the federal government really cared about its citizens, other time-proven methods of treatment would not be blacklisted by the Federal Drug Administration. With this micromanagement of medicine by the Biden administration, they may take chicken soup off shelves next to prevent us from treating the common cold.”

Meanwhile, vaccine makers are getting the silver spoon treatment. They have full legal immunity from lawsuits while the natural immunity of Americans who have already had the virus are ignored.

“As this country is taking a turn for the worse, we are telling federal bureaucrats: ‘We do not need your help; the Lord is our Balm of Gilead, He will be our physician, and there will be healing for His people,’” Bouquet declares.

The Ohio clergy closed their letter by saying, “This unilateral and divisive order is unethical and tantamount to what a totalitarian king would dictate. Furthermore, Mr. President, with respect to your vaccine mandate, we respond by saying ‘We have no king but King Jesus.’” {eo}
