

What's Going on with All the Drone Activity? 3 Things to Know

Recently, suspicious drone activity has captivated people across the nation, and government officials have told Americans that they are unaware of where these drones came from. Below are three things you need to know in the wake of these highly unusual circumstances.

Drone activity has been abnormally high in the Northeastern states, and now in California as well.

The drone sightings in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York have caused a great panic to the people in the Northeast. Now, these drones are not just in the Northeast, but in California as well. Drone sightings in San Diego County, California are also taking place.

"Mysterious car-sized drones spotted in night sky above San Diego County" CBS 8 reports.

On Nov. 22, 2024, Colin Rambo from Lemon Grove recorded a video of his account of seeing the drones.

"I was driving down the street," Rambo says, according to CBS 8, "and I pulled my car over because I saw what looked like a fleet of glowing red saw at least 25 of them over a five-minute period."

These sightings just continue to grow in number as time passes.

The U.S. government denies the drones being harmful despite being unsure of their origins.

White House National Security Communications Advisor, John Kirby, gave a press briefing on the situation where he said he was not aware of any imagery related to the drones directly obtained by the U.S. government.

Again, I ask, how can you not know what they are but know definitively that they aren't a threat?

Answer: it must be the US military

“We have certainly done thorough analysis of the existing imagery,” Kirby says. “The analysis thus far, in an investigation that is ongoing, has not revealed any national security or malicious intent or criminal information comes to light that changes that characterization, then we’ll be the first ones to let you know. But right now, there’s just no indication that this is some sort of foreign, malign activity, or in fact, even criminal.”

However, the increased sightings of the drones in the past few weeks have put people on edge, as it would for most if they were to spot a large, vehicle-sized drone over their home.

New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy also spoke on the drone situation, according to CBS News.

“Based on everything we is no public safety risk we’re aware of. On the other hand, is it frustrating to not have more answers on this? Is it frustrating to not have a source for these things? Yes,” Murphy said.

The mysterious drone activity has gone international.

Reuters released a report late morning on Dec. 13, confirming drone sightings flying over a United States airbase in Ramstein, Germany.

A spokesperson for the base told Reuters that “no impacts to base residents, facilities or assets” happened, and that “In concert with host nation authorities, we continue to monitor the airspace to ensure safety and security of the community.”

While less mysterious, a Chinese citizen was also arrested recently for allegedly flying a drone above the Space Force Base in Santa Barbara County, California, according to the Washington Examiner. These events over military bases area are certainly concerning.

These unfamiliar drones are a call for us as Christians to pray, to discern in the spirit what is actually going on and to stay alert at all times.
