

5,500 Find 'Freedom in Jesus' at University of Cincinnati

Ministry leaders and organizers with UniteUS say they have witnessed "just a glimpse of what heaven will be like" after more than 5,000 young people joined together to worship and praise Jesus on Wednesday night.

UniteUS is a college campus evangelistic movement marked by salvations, water baptisms, and worship. The latest event, which took place at the University of Cincinnati, saw the Spirit of God move once again over the lives of thousands of students.

According to the organization, 5,500 young people attended the event, thousands of them rededicated their lives or made first-time decisions for salvation, and 2,000 students were connected to local churches and ministries.

Video footage posted to UniteUS's Instagram page shows a massive crowd dancing with joy as they celebrate Jesus.

"Thousands of students dancing on the graves they once lived in," reads the caption on the video.

Hundreds who attended the event took the next step in their faith by getting baptized outside of the Cincinnati Red

Stadium. Shouts of joy peeled through the crowd of onlookers as students, who were baptized by other students in the back of pickup trucks, came out of the water.

“What we witnessed at the University of Cincinnati tonight was just a glimpse of what heaven will be like! Praise the Lord for the gift of freedom found in JESUS,” wrote UniteUS founder and organizer Tonya Prewett on Instagram.

Prewett, Pastor Jonathan Pokluda, and the founder of the IF: Gathering, Jennie Allen, have traveled to college campuses across the country to meet students desperate for a relationship with God at UniteUS events.

Pokluda commented on an Instagram post that last night’s outreach “was different. In the best way.”
