

How a Personal Prophetic Word Set One Woman on Her Purpose

“Out of your pain, many will be set free,” is what the Lord said to me.

Never miss the opportunity to thank God for the lives who will be touched by the words of your testimony (Rev. 12:11).

Give God glory for seeing you through your pain. Praise Him for your past disappointments. Let your light shine even in the midst of darkness. Every wound you have experienced, is for those who are in captivity.

Rejoice, for it is always a temporary journey through the wilderness. Trouble doesn't last always. Remember, it's for God's glory! Know this! Going through is a pressing out! Allowing God to process you, so you can help set the captives free is for His glory. It's your time to let your light shine brightly! Think bigger. Hunger for more!

Everything I put out in all of my writings is what I have been through personally. My desire is for folks to be free! That's the desire in my heart Father gave me (Ps. 37:4). Look to Him for motivation. When you are in your rightful position, you are ready for abundant release. May this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus (Phil. 2:5). Labor in the Lord this season and receive the fruit that was ordained for you.

May your cup run over so you will continue to be a blessing to many more. {eoa}

Gina R. Prince is an apostle of the gospel of Jesus Christ. She has a podcast show called “The Keys Against The Enemy” on . Connect with Gina on Instagram and Twitter @ginarprince as well as Facebook at “The Keys Against The Enemy.” Visit her website at and .