Is God’s Judgment Coming for the Prophetic? Here’s What You Need to Know

Is it possible that the prophetic movement just may need a bit of refining fire?

In an exclusive interview with Charisma Media, Rabbi Kirt Schneider discussed the spiritual judgment that may be coming for some of God’s faith leaders concerning today’s false prophecies.

“All you’ve got to do today is go get a business card and ‘you’re a prophet,'” Schneider says. “We need the fear of the Lord in us. If we’re going to be saying, ‘Thus saith the Lord,’ we better be sure it was the Lord.”

Schneider points out that respect for the Lord and His holiness and Word is of the utmost importance for us today.

“The emphasis on grace today is too extreme, so we’ve got all these people that supposedly are prophets, that they’re calling themselves prophets, the church is calling prophets, and they seem to prophesy over and over again things that don’t come to pass,” Schneider says.

Rabbi Kirt Schneider’s sobering words are a wake-up call to the body of Christ—especially those within the prophetic movement. His warning highlights the need for deeper reverence, accountability and alignment with the true fear of the Lord. When prophetic voices speak without divine backing, the result can be spiritual confusion and disillusionment within the church.
