

Is It Too Late for America?

Has America passed the point of no return? Have we fallen too far to recover?

It's true that we've had spiritual revivals and great awakenings in the past. But have we ever sunk this low?

We're talking about more than 60 million abortions since 1973.

About a radical redefinition of marriage and an all-out assault on gender distinctions.

About a widespread scorning of the Bible and biblical values.

About an epidemic of pornography.

About massive spiritual and moral decline, to the point that middle-school children are sexting each other—meaning, sending each other naked pictures.

And we're talking about tremendous division on every front—political and social and ethnic.

How do we recover from this? Could it be too late for America?

Based on the lessons of history, the answer is absolutely not. Another great awakening could be at hand, but it is anything but guaranteed.

To learn about the lessons of history—from England to America, and from the 1700s until today—and for our role in bringing about a spiritual awakening, watch our latest “Consider This” video.
