

Is Kamala Harris the Wicked 'Witch in the White House' Prophesied by Kim Clement?

Was Kamala Harris' rise to political power prophesied about long ago?

Back in 2014, Kim Clement had a stark, profound prophecy about a "witch in the White House." Now that Kamala Harris has risen to the position of running for president after Joe Biden decided not to run for a re-election campaign, we can wonder if this prophecy is about the current vice president.

On Feb. 22, 2014, Clement prophesied about the seat of the presidency, however, part of this prophecy also related to Harris' home state of California.

"California, you are dying because of a drought. Watch my sign. Watch the sign of rain. For I told you there would be severe wind from above. And all the states that are affected by this severe weather have been set up for a shaking of My spirit and an outpouring of My spirit," Clement prophesied.

The prophecy then got extra interesting as Clement specifically pointed out that God has His eyes on California.

"I'm looking at you," Clement prophesied. "Gold, stone, you recognize the man that I have raised up, pray. For the enemy will do everything in his power to put a witch in the White House."

“God did say to me, ‘Kim, get ready there’s going to be a political upheaval, there’s going to be a betrayal which will involve the vice president of the nation.’ God said do not fear because wherever truth resides you will be there,” the prophesy said.
