

Jonathan Cahn: The Ancient Connection to the 2024 Election

In a new prophetic message, rabbi and New York Times best-selling author Jonathan Cahn revealed new insights about the 2024 election and how it relates back to biblical figures.

"[If] you want to understand Donald Trump, you need to understand Jehu," Cahn says. "Jehu was an unlikely man to become king of Israel, Trump was an unlikely man to become the President of the United States. Jehu wasn't a politician; he was a fighter and a warrior. He was wild, unpredictable. Trump wasn't a politician; he's a fighter, a warrior, wild, unpredictable. Jehu was, despite everything, called of God, anointed, used of God. Trump was, despite everything, called of God, anointed, used of God."

Cahn makes the point that just as Jehu was the biblical figure known for contending against a female with evil agendas for the rule and reign of Israel, Trump has done the same thing, once against Clinton and now against Harris.

"So, the Jehu prototype involves his contending against a woman ruler for the leadership of the land. So, if Trump is following the Jehu prototype, could that be part of the mystery of Trump?" Cahn asks. "Notice something; up to this point in American history, there's only been one person who has run as a presidential candidate against a woman ruler."

Trump's striking similarities can even be found in historical artifacts.

"I wrote of the Jehu prototype in 'The Paradigm.' I put in a certain picture of Jehu in the book. It was an old lithograph drawn by Gustave Doré. Doré was a famous artist of 19th century who was recently looking at it. I noticed something strange, and I've never seen this in any illustration or image of any king of Israel," says Cahn.

The image Cahn references depicts a scene from 2 Kings 9 when Jehu commands for Jezebel to be thrown out of the palace. In this image, is something not noticed by most people: Jehu's ears are pierced.

"I've never seen that on a depiction of the king of Israel," Cahn continues. "His ears are pierced for some reason."

In a similar fashion, Trump's ear was pierced by the bullet that hit him in July when an assassination attempt on his life took place. However, this is only the beginning of the uncanny connection between Trump and Jehu.

"[There] is an image even more ancient, much much more ancient. It comes from a 3,000-year-old object. The object is called the Black Obelisk. The Black Obelisk of King Shalmaneser III, king of Assyria, whose reign is dated from 858 to 824 B.C. The Black Obelisk contains ancient engravings. But what is most significant and amazing about the Black Obelisk is that it contains the only ancient representation that we know of on planet earth of a biblical figure that is actually done from ancient, biblical times," Cahn says.

The biblical figure on the Black Obelisk is none other than Jehu. In the depiction of Jehu are a few key pieces that connect this image to the person of Donald Trump.

"There's only one American leader, one American president, who unlike the rest of presidents and leaders, is unique in that he's often seen wearing a cap on his head—Donald Trump," Cahn says.

The image of Jehu from the Black Obelisk also depicts him wearing a cap. From here, the connection between Trump and Jehu continues to become even more obvious.

One of the most famous images of Donald Trump since the assassination attempt on his life is of him bowing down. Yet, Trump is not the only one to have been depicted in this manner before. Jehu was also shown in a bowing position on The Black Obelisk.

"Both the ancient Jehu and the modern Jehu are bowed to the ground. Both are captured in profile. Both their heads are bent over. And notice the modern Jehu has his hands resting on the ground right under his face. Now notice the 3,000-year-old image of the ancient hands are resting on the ground right under his face. No human could have orchestrated this," Cahn says.
